Non-electronic Assignment Requirements

* Instructors can set student submissions to Non-electronic, giving the instructor the ability to require assignment submission in person or to give an assignment that doesn't need to be submitted at all, such as a reading assignment.
* Instructors can grade non-electronic student submissions that were submitted in person through the Assignments tool using the current grading functionality.
* Instructors can release graded non-electronic assignments that were submitted in person to the student through the Assignments tool using the current release functionality.
* Students can view instructions for an assignment whose submission is set to non-electronic.
* Students can view the grade of a non-electronic assignment that they submitted in person through the Assignments tool once it is released by the instructor.

The mockups that follow assume that the instructor has chosen Non-electronic for student submissions. Many screens in the Assignments tool are affected by this change. These screens have been included and notes have been provided to indicate how each screen is affected.
